HRB says yes to B&B, no to events at Shadow Lawn

About 35 downtown Bardstown residents attended a meeting of the Bardstown Historical Review Board Monday night, many of them to speak out against a request to utilize the historic home of Shadow Lawn at 216 W. Flaget Ave. as an event facility.

That request was denied by a vote of 4-0. However, a conditional use permit to operate a three-bedroom bed and breakfast out of the house was approved unanimously.

Both recommendations were scheduled to come before the Board of Adjustment for a final vote at 5 p.m. Tuesday. The results of that meeting were not available by press time.

Shadow Lawn was formerly owned by Chuck Willis, who operated a two-room bed and breakfast out of the facility from 2003-2007. Willis died in December 2008, and since then the house has been

Code enforcement moves, senior center approaches late completion date

The Nelson County Code Enforcement building on East Stephen Foster Avenue is vacant now that the office has moved to the second floor of the Old Courthouse.

"We're going to come up with a game plan before we start doing any of [the] demolishing. There's a lot of metal on that building," Judge Executive Dean Watts told Nelson Fiscal Court Tuesday. "Anything we can, we're going to try to recycle as much as possible."

The building has suffered structural problems and will likely be replaced with a parking lot for the County Clerk's Office, which is housed in the Sutherland Building next door.

However, Road Department Supervisor and County Engineer Jim Lemieux said he spotted

Colonial Days

JENNIFER CORBETT/The Kentucky Standard

Bardstown Colonial Days last weekend at Old Bardstown Village gave the public a glimpse of what life was like during the early settlement of the Bluegrass State. The three-day festival included demonstrations, re-enactments and even a ball. AT TOP — John Wysocki, right, enjoys a game of "10 and 4" with Joseph Manetta. The objective of the 18th century game is to take most of the pebbles and whoever has the last one loses. ABOVE — Mark Thomas gives an ode to the past by creating some blacksmith tools. Local students shed new light on hot button issues

by local Human Rights Commission

JENNIFER CORBETT

As a way to integrate more youth in their foundation, the Bardstown-Nelson County Human Rights Commission asked local students to share their views on some hot button issues during its first Youth Essay Contest.

Winners from middle school and high school will be revealed during the 2012 Outstanding Achievement Award and Youth Essay Contest Winners ceremony at 6 p.m. April 9, at the Bardstown-Nelson County Civic Center. Light refreshments will be served. The event is free and open to the public.

"I have to say the (student) entries were very thought provoking," said Sharon Shanks, treasurer of the Human Rights Commission.

The contest was broken into two categories: middle and high school. Middle schoolers were able to answer one of two questions in their essay: How do human rights apply to you and your classmates in your school and community? Which human right is most important to you and why?

For high school students, the two questions included: How does bullying affect the right to personal security? How can new social media best be used to promote human rights in your school and community?

Shanks noted that most of the student entries shed new light on current issues, as well as other issues of which many members of the commission didn't even think.

In addition to the youth winners, a member or group in the community will be awarded the Outstanding Achievement Award.

"The whole purpose is to recognize them for making outstanding contributions (to the community)," Shanks said.

According to Shanks, the winner or winners of the award have already been contacted, but won't be revealed until the event.

Central Kentucky Community Theatre presents Man of La Mancha

Central Kentucky Community Theatre presents Man of La Mancha, one of the great theatre successes of our time. It is a passionate and poignant tale of a Man of La Mancha noble knight who has the courage to live the impossible dream. His holy quest is a mission of salvation to find compassion not for him, but for others. This is a play-within-a-play, based on Cervantes' "Don Quixote." Is this noble knight indeed a crazy old man, or is he the sanest, the best of men and our high ideals? The music will inspire you in this uplifting tale.

All three of the play's main characters are residents of Nelson County. Eric Diersing (of Bardstown) plays the gallant knight Don Quixote, his trusty sidekick Sancho Panza is played by Darrell Parks (of Bloomfield), and Aldonza, Quixote's perfect lady, is played by Ashley Gilpin (of Bardstown). Also in the cast include Eric Greenwell, of Bardstown, and Megan Diersing, of Bardstown.

Show times are April 13-14 at 7 p.m., April 15 at 2 p.m., April 20-21 at 7 p.m. and finally April 22 at 2 p.m. at the Springfield Opera House. Department to speak with Chaplain Tom Mobley, since their van sustained moderate damage and they didn't know anyone in the area.

One person was transported to Flaget from an accident that occurred earlier Sunday, about 12:17 p.m. Bardstown Police, the Bardstown-Nelson County Fire Department and Nelson County EMS were dispatched to that accident.

According to a Bardstown Police report, Sharon R. Martin, 26, Bardstown, was driving her 2011 Kia Sorrento westbound on Springfield Road, and when she stopped to make a left turn onto a Blue Grass entrance ramp, Donald W. McCoy, 21, Bardstown, was allegedly unable to stop his 1999 Ford Escort and struck the rear of Martin's car.

Martin was transported to Flaget with non-incapacitating neck injuries, but none of her four passengers were transported and neither was McCoy.

St. Vincent is still around to help those in need

St. Vincent de Paul didn't leave, it just moved about two blocks to the right and one block back.

On Monday, the mission store, one of Nelson County's most established, opened in its newest location in the Old Rizer Building on the corner of North Second Street and East Broadway Avenue. The Archdiocese of Louisville purchased the building in January to serve as the new home for the mission store and food pantry. It was a deal more than a year in the planning stages.

The store was founded in 1992 to provide food, clothing and furniture to those in need. Since it first opened it had been renting space in the Knights of Columbus building at 114 N. Fourth St. But in its 20-year time it outgrew the space and began looking for some place a little larger to be able to expand its food pantry and clothing center.

The old location was roughly 3,500 square feet, while the new location gives the mission store about 5,000 square feet in which to operate. As the economy still wavers on the brink of bouncing back, its mission stores such as St. Vincent de Paul that keep people on their feet. On a three-month basis, the store estimates it gives out 1,130 boxes of food that serves about 3,500 people. The organization also provides financial help to about 50 people each month.

While new guidelines have changed the way St. Vincent distributes food, it still has the same mission of helping those in need. The new guidelines mean St. Vincent is no longer receiving U.S. Department of Agriculture food. The food is now being distributed monthly at the Nelson County Fairgrounds as part of the Feeding America program. Those wishing to learn about the new guidelines or about the food distribution can call St. Vincent de Paul Mission Store at 348-9752.

Though those guidelines have changed St. Vincent's food distribution ability somewhat, the mission store still accepts food from local organizations and churches looking to help those in need. The store also accepts donations of clothing and furniture for distribution purposes as well.

With a larger location, there is hope that St. Vincent will be able to provide more of a helping hand to those who need it most and expand some of its already successful programs. And future hopes are to one day provide a soup kitchen out of St. Vincent as well.

As we congratulate St. Vincent on its new location, we encourage the public to find ways to keep donations coming to the mission store. It's through the generosity of others that the store has been able to remain open and help others these past two decades.

Though the store as moved, it's phone number remains the same. The store can be reached at 348-9752. It's normal business hours are 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m. Monday through Friday, but the store will be closed this Friday for Good Friday.

OUR VIEWS

Don't ignore the symbolism

I never wanted to fall victim to "The Hunger Games" hype. I tried to stay away as long as I could.

Ultimately, I caved in and bought the first book in the series and read it in three days.

In my opinion, the hype surrounding "The Hunger Games" didn't let me down. It was a fantastic read and it kept me glued from page to page.

The book features almost every theme in fiction: violence, suspense, drama, romance and a bit of comedy. During one section of it, the carnage is something that I've never read about before — so it shocked me that the book series is marketed toward teenagers 13 and older.

"The Hunger Games" is set in a futuristic post-apocalyptic world where North America is broken into 13 districts and the city that runs all of them — The Capitol. All of the districts failed rebelling against The Capitol, so as punishment they chose one girl and one boy, aka tributes, from each district to compete in "The Hunger Games," where they have to fight to the death until one of them is left standing.

The story is told through the eyes of 16-year-old Katniss Everdeen, who volunteers for the games in place of her younger sister, Primrose. Everdeen is a strong teenager, who has to step in as the breadwinner for her family when her father is killed in a coal mining accident.

Throughout the "games" section, the reader is intertwined with Everdeen's do-whatever-it-takes form of survival mode. You root for her when she's failing and cheer her on when she's succeeding. You start to understand her motives and her reasoning to show the people at The Capitol that what they're doing is wrong.

As I sat reading the book till the wee hours of the morning, I couldn't help but wonder how I would react if I had a 13-year-old child reading this book. They wouldn't understand the meaning behind most of the storylines. I could see them frightened by the violence.

For example, large wasps attack many tributes — leaving some to go insane from the poison in them. In another instance, mutant mutt dogs are released into the arena and prey on the remaining fighters.

Another example is of players fighting each other over supplies to survive.

Of course, it wouldn't be a teen novel without the addition of a romance sub-plot between Everdeen and Peeta Mellark, who was the boy chosen from her district.

But what the reader learns is that Everdeen's choices are propelled by the fact she wants to win, at any cost.

In a sense, these kids are placed in a reality show where everyone is watching them kill each other — for entertainment.

On the outside, those plot concepts seem like something straight out of a novel in the fiction section. But in reality, it's marketed toward young adults.

When I was a teenager, the movies, TV and books aimed for us didn't feature such adult storylines. Nothing featured high amounts of violence; many of the shows I remember were about teens going through life's struggles.

If I was 13 and began reading "The Hunger Games," I wouldn't understand the symbolism of the totalitarian government, how Everdeen has to watch what she says in fear of what the Capitol may hear, how the games are seen as entertainment to some and most of all, how The Capitol uses the games to prove it's in control and there's nothing anybody can do about it.

Where's the fun loving teen programming from the 1990's such as "Clarissa Explains It All," "All That," and "Hey Arnold." Those shows were able to address teen issues without taking it too far. Never once, did I feel scared by what was shown.

As the years passed, I was able to watch more adult programming. I learned how to separate fiction from reality, which actually reminds me of the "Twilight" series when it became huge.

There were stories of people believing they were real vampires and actually created fangs to bite other people.

As of now, I have yet to see anyone mimic anything from "The Hunger Games," although both book series have done something many franchises couldn't do in the past — promote reading. I'm not a person who reads books a lot, because I have a bad habit of beginning a book but never finishing it.

But "The Hunger Games" became something different for me. It pulled me in from the get-go, tugged at my heart-strings and shocked me at times. The book is definitely not for the faint of heart, and most of all, not for young kids.

One season ends, another begins

So, how many friends did you lose in the last week? The basketball wars always leave some casualties especially when our two powerhouses get together to battle it out. Cardinal Red, Wildcat Blue. The nations collide and very few people in the Commonwealth ignore it. Not trying to sit on the fence, I genuinely like both teams and remember well going to Freedom Hall as a kid seeing Wes Unseld and Butch Beard play and a few years later getting tickets to see Dan Issel and Mike Pratt in action. One memory seared forever in my brain will always be standing near the floor and watching Adolph Rupp walk within a few feet of me. I was hooked at a young age.

While it is always great to see the enthusiasm the state has for its basketball (the excitement these past 10 days has been overwhelming), the most amusing part of watching everyone trash talk is the reason why. Louisville fans are saying that Kentucky fans are obnoxious, arrogant and need to be brought down to size. The only problem is Kentucky fans are saying the exact same thing about the

>> kennyfogle@rocketmail.com

Cardinal nation.

Kentucky has had its share of problems through the years since Daniel Boone and the Cherokee and Shawnee nations were making headlines and basketball was yet to be born. Kentucky has had its share of people to honor, Presidents, Vice Presidents, business leaders, sports icons, many of whom were either born in the state or came and stayed a while, but not until the Baron and basketball came on the scene in the middle of the last century did the state have any major claim for attention on the world stage. First it was the Derby, later Bourbon began its rise in prominence and last, but certainly not least, Basketball. The Kentucky Speedway hopes to join this elite group with NASCAR, but it takes time to build a tradition that could rival the other three staples of the bluegrass.

Basketball means much more to many people other than being just a sport. Some measure time by what year a certain team won the NCAA tournament, what year a certain player played, which local teams went to the state tournament. Mention St. Joe Prep and almost certainly someone will tell you a story about one of his sports teams. I served as chairman of the school board several years ago and the only way I can remember when is because that was the year Nelson County won the state football championship. We don't talk too much about football these days, only to say wait till next year.

I can still remember exactly where I was when Kentucky won it all in 1978 and time stood still in 1980 when Louisville brought the trophy home. The round ball sport has endured some good times and some not so good. Charges of racism crept in during the turbulent '60s as Kentucky — part of the Southeastern Conference — was caught behind the times as other schools integrated and the southern schools resisted. Games were cancelled and schedules were adjusted just to make sure that different races were not playing in certain buildings. Kentucky was no exception; it took a few years before Coach Rupp and his team welcomed their first black player in 1969. Kentucky was even highlighted in the film "Glory Road" as an all black team from Texas Western beat them in the title game in 1966. While Coach Rupp wasn't targeted as racist, Kentucky fans were. We've come a long way.

So I hope there were no real fights or feuds that can't be mended from this past week and no divorces or breakups, but I am quite sure there were a few. We take basketball very seriously in our state, probably too much so, but it is who we are. Practice for next year begins in September.

Term limits, not tort reform

To the editor:
Before this legislative session, I had been happy with my representative, David Floyd. However, I think his recent behavior is a clear example of why we need term limits, not tort reform.
HB 361 embodied what is wrong with politics today. Floyd co-sponsored special interest legislation aimed at protecting nursing homes from liability by giving the keys of the courthouse to a panel of three doctors who get paid by the “winning party.” If the claims of our most vulnerable citizens are so frivolous, why be afraid to put them in front of a jury?
The bill rightfully died in committee. But now its sponsors have attached it as an amendment to a different bill and are trying to sneak it into law that way.

The real travesty here is that Floyd has family members who own nursing homes in Kentucky. The bill embodies what is wrong with politics today. Legislators trying to line their own pockets and the pockets of their families through their elected position. Whatever happened to running for political office to represent the people as a whole and for the betterment of society as a whole instead of the betterment of a few? This is why we need term limits for all the legislators in Frankfort, Washington and perhaps even local government.
Please call your legislator and tell them to vote against the amendment to HB 510 and to enact term limits.

What is columnist waiting for?

To the editor:
Regarding Jennifer Corbett's editorial in The Kentucky Standard Friday, March 30, titled “I do? ... I'd rather wait until I'm ready,” she spoke of her 4-1/2 years of friendship with her boyfriend, 10-month engagement, and 2-1/2 years of living together. “I'm still young and still have time in my life to be married. So I'm perfectly content with waiting until I'm ready.” For what is she waiting to be ready?

>>GENERAL ASSEMBLY

General Assembly session is almost over

FRANKFORT — By the time you read this, the 2012 General Assembly will be one day away from concluding. We have completed 59 days of the 60 day session, the last day, April 12, is reserved for considering any Governor's vetoes, if any.

By far, working on the state's two-year budget was the most pressing issue this week. After several late nights, we reached consensus on the $19.4 billion budget with the House negotiators a little before 3 a.m. on Thursday. It was a hard-fought point but for the first time in recent memory, Kentucky will not bond for current expenses. The Senate insisted on minimizing using one-time resources for recurring operating costs. We are prepared for any road. If the economy improves, the state is prepared to reach that better day quicker. If our revenues suffer, Kentucky's landing will be cushioned.

We need to keep our belts tightened regardless of the pressures. There are many good and worthwhile programs out there but the fact is we simply cannot afford it; we do not have the dollars. So, we did the best we could and made the same sorts of decisions occurring around kitchen tables throughout the commonwealth. This final budget includes those unavoidable 8.4 percent reductions for most state agencies that the Governor recommended, with exemptions for critical areas such as Medicaid and Corrections. State universities would see a 6.4 percent reduction, and K-12 schools would receive full base-line funding. State employees will not receive raises. The Governor is required to find $40 million a year in efficiencies. We also significantly reduced the state's structural imbalance to under $200 million. The final budget contains less debt than either the Governor or the House proposed and more money in the Rainy Day Fund. The state's six-year road plan which includes $3.7 billion during the next biennium for the repair and maintenance of Kentucky's roads is still being considered in a conference committee.

» STATE SENATOR

We also want to continue preparing Kentucky for a stronger, more prosperous future. House Bill 495 provides a solution for paying the interest to the Federal Government on Kentucky's unemployment insurance loan of $960 million and putting our fund on a sustainable path. In order to repay the loan, the House proposed a $21 per employee annual surcharge to prevent a $400 per employee Federal penalty. The Senate added language that provides our businesses an unemployment insurance tax decrease to help recover the costs. Once the debt is repaid and the trust fund is more than $200 million, state tax increases in current law will be deferred to enable our businesses to do what they do best — create jobs.

House Bill 300 changes the make-up of the board of the Kentucky state employee retirement system by placing term limits on the board and staggering the terms of the board members, requiring investment placement agents to register as executive branch lobbyists and requiring a state audit every five years. This will add transparency and accountability to the process.

The Senate will convene for a final day on Thursday, April 12. Call me toll-free at 1-800-372-7181 if you would like to share your thoughts or visit www.lrc.ky.gov to learn more about the work we have done so far. You can also call me at home at (270) 692-6945.

Note: Senator Jimmy Higdon (R-Lebanon) represents the 14th District including Marion, Mercer, Nelson, Taylor, and Washington counties. He serves on the Appropriations and Revenue Committee, the Licensing and Occupations Committee, the State and Local Government Committee, the Education Committee, the Program Review and Investigations Committee, the Tobacco Settlement and Oversight Committee, and the Transportation Committee. In addition, he is also the Chairman of the Budget Review Subcommittee on Transportation.

Crit Luallen to be Keynote Speaker at 2012 Nelson County Jefferson-Jackson Day Dinner

Former Commonwealth of Kentucky Auditor of Public Accounts, Crit Luallen will be the keynote speaker at the upcoming Nelson County Jefferson-Jackson Day Dinner April 13. Local Nelson County Democratic Candidate for State Representative, Dick Heaton will also address the audience. All Democratic and nonpartisan candidates and office holders are invited to attend and be recognized.

The event, hosted by the Nelson County Democratic Executive Committee and the Nelson County Democratic Women's Club, will be at the Bardstown Country Club at Maywood, 130 Maywood Ave. The evening begins at 6 p.m. with a cocktail reception. A buffet dinner will be served at 7 p.m. with the program starting at 7:30 p.m.

Luallen was elected the Commonwealth of Kentucky's 47th Auditor of Public Accounts in November 2003. Her service to the people of Kentucky began in 1974 as a campaign staff member to Wendell Ford and culminated in her nearly seven years as Secretary of the Governor's Executive Cabinet, then the highest appointed position in Kentucky state government. As Secretary of the Executive Cabinet, Luallen was the chief operating officer of Kentucky, with responsibility for more than 35,000 full-time employees and a budget of $17 billion.

Luallen also served as State Budget Director, Secretary of the Finance and Administration Cabinet, Secretary of the Kentucky Tourism Cabinet, Commissioner of the Kentucky Department of the Arts, and Special Assistant to the Governor. She also spent four years in Louisville and served as President of the Greater Louisville Economic Development Partnership, a regional economic development agency. In 2001 she was awarded the National Excellence in Leadership Award by Women Executives in State Government.

Heaton announced in January that he is running as the Democratic Candidate for State Representative in the 50th District. Heaton graduated from Centre College in 1976, earning a B.A. in Economics and Management. After graduation, he returned to Bardstown and began his 35 year career working at his family dealership, Conway-Heaton, Inc., becoming a third generation owner. Heaton is also the third generation of his family to serve as Mayor of Bardstown. Throughout his life, Heaton has been involved in many community endeavors, ranging from civic clubs, schools and various boards. Presently, Heaton serves on the Board of the Kentucky Automobile Dealers Association, the Nelson County Business Development Board for Your Community Bank, and is Chairman of the Guthrie Opportunity Center Foundation. Heaton also serves on the Building and Grounds committee of St. Catharine College, and the Bardstown Mainstreet Committee. The Jefferson-Jackson Day Dinner is the annual fundraising celebration (dinner) for the Nelson County Democratic Party. It is named for Presidents Thomas Jefferson and Andrew Jackson. According to one source, the traditional Jefferson-Jackson Dinner "commemorates the happy compatibility of theory and practice" in the historical development of the Democratic Party. Jefferson gave the Democratic Party its being. Jackson gave it its full meaning.

Tickets for the evening are $30 per person in advance or $35 per person the day of the event and at the door. Tickets may be obtained by calling Nelson County Jefferson-Jackson Dinner Chair, Dee Dee Ford-Keene at 348-2247. Tickets will also be sold April 2-12 at Kenny's Cleaners, 456 East Stephen Foster Ave.

Cellist receives Foster Music Camp scholarship

Grant Howell, Bardstown Middle School student, has been awarded a full scholarship from the Stephen Foster Music Club to attend the 2012 summer Foster Music Camp at Eastern Kentucky University in June. He was selected based on his audition performance and was recommended by his music teacher, Gina Wingfield. This summer marks the 76th year of music camp at EKU. Grant plays the cello and will attend the Strings Music Camp for one week.

Niana Aydelott, seventh-grade student at Bardstown Middle School will also attend camp, supported by the Stephen Foster Music Club. She plays the violin and will attend the Strings

Camp for one week. She attended last year under a full scholarship.

The Foster Music Camp was established 76 years ago with the goal of improving school music programs and graduating high school musicians who would be well prepared for college.

At the camp, students live in dorms and study with select faculty and staff. Students receive private lessons, study music theory, music history and music literature, and participate in group rehearsals. At the end of the week, students perform in a public concert.

The Stephen Foster Music Club was founded in 1935 and is an affiliate of the National Federation of Music Clubs. Membership in the non-profit club is open to anyone with an interest in music and the promotion of American music and artists. Revenue from the Christmas Home Tour is used to provide music scholarships for the summer music camp for students in Nelson County. Students who attend may choose to participate in Band, Guitar, Piano, Strings, Vocal, and World Percussion camps which are one or two weeks long.

what looked like transite siding under some of the building's aluminum siding. Transite, a shingle-style siding found on buildings from the '40s, '50s and '60s, typically contains 25-30 percent asbestos, Lemieux explained. Such siding requires special removal to ensure the tiles don't break and release asbestos into the air, he said.

"That's kind of a monkey wrench in the plan to tear it down real quick," Lemieux said.

Gem Engineering will be asked to inspect and take samples of the siding to confirm whether it contains asbestos at an estimated cost of $1,000, he said.

Senior center update

The completion of the Nelson County Senior Citizens Center was nearly a month past its completion date of March 6 as of Tuesday. The contractor, Kleinholter Construction of Louisville, pays $300 for every day past due, Solid Waste Director and County Engineer Brad Spalding said.

Spalding estimated the building will be done in about two weeks.

"It's just a lot of nitpick stuff that's still left to be done," he said. "He said he hopes to see the inside done at the end of this week but he's still got outside stuff."

After the building is complete, Spalding will do a "punchlist" inspection of the building to make sure all the work is satisfactory. One of the larger problems at this time is that several interior and exterior doors aren't shutting, Spalding told the court.

Bulky item pickup wraps up

Bulky item pickup, now

That's kind of a monkey wrench in the plan to tear it down real quick.

JIM LEMIEUX,

CONCERNING TEARING DOWN THE NELSON COUNTY CODE ENFORCEMENT BUILDING

in its sixth week, is likely to wrap up Wednesday or Thursday, Lemieux told Fiscal Court.

Watts said anyone with bulky items can still bring them to the landfill next week.

The amount of metal collected has been down for several years, attributed to the sharp rise in scrap metal prices, which were around $10 a ton in 1995, when bulky item pickup started, and are now about $250 a ton, according to Lemieux.

"We haven't got metal for probably four or five years to amount to anything," he said.

Lemieux and magistrates agreed the drop in metal was a good thing because more items were being recycled and because it saves space in the landfill.

An estimated 5,760 tires had been collected by the end of the fifth week, compared to 4,003 in 2011, 6,098 in 2010 and 2,436 in 2009, according to a report from Spalding.

About 817.05 tons had been collected compared to 825.3 in 2011 and 620.88 in 2010. An estimated 4,435 cubic yards had been collected compared to 4,213.5 in 2011 and 3,229.11 in 2010.

District 1 Magistrate Keith Metcalfe asked if there was any way to make it more clear to residents that more than eight tires will not be collected from one place — a rule implemented this year.

"We could also change the ordinance that would say if we pick up more than eight we'll bill you back for it," Watts suggested.

But District 5 Magistrate Jerry Hahn protested that wasn't fair to those residents who had tires dropped off on their property without their permission.

Inmate community service worker population down

The number of Nelson County Jail inmates eligible to perform such work as mowing grass and picking up trash has gone down in the last approximately 30 days.

"When they're on bonds you can't put them out to work," Nelson County Jailer Dorcas Figg explained.

Watts said the county would monitor the situation for the next 60 days before looking at alternative approaches to getting the work done.

"Our [jail] population is down a little bit, but more importantly, we're lacking community service workers," he said. "If we can get that jail population down to 50 or 75 that's a good thing. Then we can pay people to get this work done."

In other news:

- Nelson County EMS ambulance station two in Bloomfield has moved from 120 Fairfield Road to 113 Pleasant View Road.

- Nelson County EMS received a newly purchased 1999 ambulance last week, and will pick up another ambulance after the vendor removes the decals.

- A 70-foot bridge on Mobley Mill Road that dropped to a 7-ton rating within the last six months will likely be restored to its 12-ton rating after 4 inches of asphalt were milled from the bridge, taking 30 tons off its weight, according to Lemieux. "Seven tons is not heavy enough for a school bus," he said.

The concrete surface of the bridge remains rough. It is on the state's Six-Year Bridge Plan, which means it may take six years or longer to see any repairs. It would cost about $250,000 to replace the bridge, said Lemieux, who added the bridge was designed with I-beams that were too small in 1972.

- The court approved the purchase of two sets of doors for the entrance to the extension office and civic center at a cost of $8,555 each. They will replace old wooden doors prone to swelling, will be better insulated and will feature key pads, District 2 Magistrate Sam Hutchins said.

- Hutchins asked whether there was an ordinance pertaining to golf cart use on county roads and in such subdivisions as Maywood and Woodlawn Springs. A golf cart driven by kids hit a vehicle in Maywood Sunday, he said. Nelson County EMS Director Joe Prewitt said EMS was not dispatched to that incident.

- Sign-up for roadside cleanup begins April 10, with cleanup taking place April 15-30.

- A second reading of a request to rezone 10.06 acres on Plum Run Road from A-1 agricultural to R-1A residential was approved.

- A second reading on a budget amendment was approved.

- The appointment of David Hall to the Spalding Hall Board of Directors was approved.

A new conditional use permit is required to operate a bed and breakfast at Shadow Lawn because C.U.P.s are issued to the property owner, not the property, Joint City-County Planning Commission Director Janet Johnston-Crowe explained.

"When Chuck was living here, he loved to have people come into his house," Beach said. The proposed event facility would be "a place for corporate business meetings, small parties, cocktail parties, small weddings, receptions."

Don Parrish, who lives at 205 W. Flaget Ave. and spoke at Monday's meeting, told The Kentucky Standard on Tuesday that he had been worried the event facility would take up parking on the street.

"The real issue is parking, and because of the codes and the rules you have to have public parking within 500 feet of the house," Beach

Parrish said he was worried even if Beach did set a maximum number of people, a manager in charge of the venue might not follow that rule. Beach lives in California, and said he would hire someone else to manage the property.

"There were several people that saw it as a conflict of interest. I can't argue with that because I agree," Beach said, explaining that Ballard stepped down from the position Monday before the meeting. Ballard could not be reached for comment by press time.

"We just realized it was a shame that such a beautiful home that had once been used as a bed and breakfast wasn't able to be used again," Huston said.

Another issue for some

neighbors was the use or sale of alcohol on the premises. According to Beach, many people appeared to believe he would sell alcohol by the drink at Shadow Lawn.

As for the potential for loud noise or music, Beach said in a letter sent to neighbors before the meeting that there would be no loud entertainment or bands.

Another rumor that Beach meant to apply for a business zoning for the house was unfounded, Beach said.

However, Parrish said the neighborhood is already heavily impacted during the Bourbon Festival, when the street is closed and often lit-

"It is a commercial venture in a residential neighborhood," Parrish said. "That's really the big issue. It amounts to the same thing as spot zoning."

The BOA looks at different criteria, including a mandate for on-site parking for such ventures, according to Johnston-Crowe.

Beach said he understood the concerns of his neighbors.

"I thought last night's meeting went very well. I didn't get what I wanted, but I live in a house in Santa Anna, Calif., that is on the historic registry," he said, "so I understand very well the passion that my neighbors have for keeping the historic district the way it is."

Beach said he would move forward with utilizing the house as a bed and breakfast if the Board of Adjustment approved that request Tuesday evening.

Overall, Shanks said the main objective of the Human Rights Commission is simple education.

"One of our main goals now is to educate people about what their human rights are, how they're protected and what to do if they're not," she said. "We want to provide the support and education that the community needs."

Cool 'Cats
unflappable, unstoppable

I fell asleep during Monday's game.

Hear me out — I have a legitimate excuse.

In addition to Monday being the bloom of championship No. 8 for Kentucky, it apparently also was the bloom of something else so powerful that a horse dosage of allergy meds was required.

And so, whether I wanted to or not, like a lot of fans who celebrated too much my memories of the game will be through a foggy lens.

I made it until halftime, by which time it appeared a blowout of Kansas was likely. Then, I did my best imitation of my father, who never met an easy chair he couldn't fall asleep in. After that I drifted in and out, usually being lucid long enough to see a fast break dunk or one of many Anthony Davis blocks or rebounds.

Ho hum, nothing to see here. Nothing but a great team doing what it has done all season long, and that's play an outstanding brand of ball at such a high level it made the spectacular seem mundane, almost par for the course.

I tried my best, slugging down a soda pop with the hopes of getting just enough of a jolt to make it through to the end, but it was not to be. Had Kansas been more of a game opponent, it might have been more exciting. Saturday's win over Louisville certainly seemed much more exciting, but that had a lot to do with the build-up to the game, as even when the Cards made it a game late, Kentucky still seemed in control from start to finish.

I woke up just after midnight Tuesday morning to the WLKY sports guys commenting on video of celebrations in Lexington and what catchy "Un—" something or another the team should be named. Something about unflappable stuck out in my head, and seemed very appropriate.

Nothing seemed to get to this team this season, other than the road game in Bloomington, which they still almost won despite having to overcome a very difficult environment and a very good team playing at its absolute best.

As this team continued to plow forward, and the expectations upon them grew as the win count multiplied, they were most certainly unflappable in the face of extreme pressure.

At least outwardly that pressure did not come from John Calipari, but it may be a different story behind the closed practice doors. The pressure of expectations — the need, almost, if you will — to add that eighth national championship banner had to be tremendous at times. But if it were a burden, in no way, shape or form did that burden show.

We can be left to speculate what might have happened had Kentucky not fulfilled the expectations of being that overwhelming favorite. Would they be just a footnote in time, like 1983 Houston or 1985 Georgetown, great teams that couldn't get it

Morel mushrooms are tasty and fun to hunt

It seems most everything is off schedule or ahead of schedule this spring with the warm weather. That includes morel mushrooms, which people have been finding several weeks earlier than usual.

Veteran shroomers (mushroom hunters) were finding the yellow morels in March even before the small black morels normally begin to peek through the leaves of the south side of wooded hills.

Prime morel time normally depends on weather and where you are located. In Central Kentucky, I've found morels (rarely) as early as the end of March, but the best picking usually comes about the middle of April. This year, the peak hunting may be over by mid-month.

In this area, the top picking usually is the last week of April through the first week in May.

Some morel enthusiasts then head north into Michigan for more picking. Some areas in Michigan are well-known for their fabulous wild mushroom crops.

There are several types of morels and the earliest to appear are called by a variety of names, including "hickory chickens." They must have at least a dozen other local names.

Deep, heavily wooded areas are the place I usually find the blacks. I normally find the first blacks on the south or southeastern side of hills where the early spring sun strikes first.

The blacks are followed (and overlapped) with the long

STAFF REPORT

Local products Callie Ethington and Kate Spaulding competed at last month's NAIA Swimming and Diving Nationals at Oklahoma City.

Spaulding, a freshman at Lindsey Wilson, was appearing in her first national meet. Spaulding is a Bethlehem graduate. Ethington, a junior at University of the Columbians, made it to her third national meet. She graduated from Nelson County High School.

Ethington's Patriot squad finished sixth overall in the team competition, and she swam a 25.04 split to help her 200-yard freestyle relay team to a fifth-place finish in the event. Spaulding's Blue Raider squad was 17th in the event.

Ethington also placed 29th in the 100 butterfly and 35th in the 50 freestyle.

Spaulding's squad placed 15th in the 400 freestyle relay and 16th in the 200 medley relay, and she was 22nd in the 100 breaststroke.

stem variety, then the white morels and the big yellow sponges. There usually is three weeks or so of good morel hunting.

I strongly recommend that new morel hunters NOT eat any mushroom they aren't positively sure is safe. The morels are wonderful eating; however, some other types of fungi are poisonous — some very poisonous. There are numerous books and Internet websites which identify the edible mushrooms.

While there are many types of mushrooms, I concentrate on the morels. They are the ones I know best, and I feel confident picking and eating them.

When I return home after a successful mushroom hunt, I cut them lengthwise in two pieces. Rinse off any dirt and bugs, and place them in a bowl of salt water. I let them soak in the salty water overnight to kill any bugs missed in rinsing. There will be some. That's part of mushroom hunting and eating.

When I'm ready to cook them, I rinse them again. Next I roll them in flour, salt and pepper, and place them in a skillet with about a half-inch of hot canola oil. However, I cook up several cut up pieces of bacon in the skillet for flavor, before adding the oil. In my opinion, it enhances the flavor.

I cook them until golden brown, then place them on paper towels to drain prior to serving with the rest of the meal. Unfortunately, I seem to sample so many, it's tough

Nelson County to be featured on ESPN3

Nelson County is on the road this week at the Disney 2012 Spring Break event in Orlando, but local fans can still check out the team, as one of the Cardinals' games will have a bigger-than-normal audience, even for a home game.

Nelson County's game Thursday against St. Vincent, Pa., was randomly selected to be aired nationally on the Internet on ESPN3, which is available locally through Bardstown Cable Internet.

"It's a great opportunity — a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity probably — for all of us," Cardinal coach David Sparrow said. "We're not a nationally-ranked team that gets a lot of notoriety. It's exciting."

Sparrow said he's not sure how he or his players will handle the nerves that come with the national spotlight.

"You never know how anybody's going to react," he said.

Sparrow said Buffalo Wings and Rings in Bardstown will also be airing the game, should fans be looking for a place to gather and watch.

COLLEGE SPORTS

C'ville holding tryouts for women's JV hoops squad

CAMPBELLSVILLE — Lady Tiger Basketball will be expanding in 2012-13, adding a junior varsity squad to go along with the tradition-filled varsity program.

"We're exited about getting this new program started and continuing the tradition of Lady Tiger Basketball," said Ginger Colvin, coach of the Lady Tigers. "We look forward to helping mentor young women and working with them on how to be successful on and off the court."

Junior varsity basketball will hold two tryout sessions for graduating high school seniors who are looking for a way to extend their competitive playing careers. There will be sessions from noon until 2 p.m. on two Saturdays in April — April 14 and 28.

"The women's junior varsity program allows us to recruit new students that want to participate in the sport they love while earning a college degree," said CU Director of Athletics Rusty Hollingsworth. "It is important for us to provide them a quality experience while they are a student-athlete at Campbellsville University."

done when the chips were down?

Nope, not this bunch. Nothing fazed them. Not the loss to Indiana. Not the loss to Vandy in the SEC final; perhaps a sandbag loss to refocus the team. And no punch thrown by any of the NCAA six — WKU, Iowa State, Indiana, Baylor, Louisville or Kansas — served as anything more than a minor, temporary obstacle on the way toward cutting the nets down.

It leads me to another what might have been question, one we'll all be asking as the upcoming seasons unfold: How many championships could this bunch have won, had they stuck around? Unfortunately, it'll be one left unanswered.

For now, we can just appreciate what we just saw.

Azaleas, rhododendron differences

Did you know that azaleas and rhododendrons are essentially the same thing? Both are members of the rhododendron genus; they have similar blooms and similar cultural requirements. Some say the primary difference between the two is the number of pollen-bearing stamens: rhods have 10 or more per flower and azaleas have only five.

The rhododendron genus is divided into five main groups: large-leaf rhods, small-leaf rhods, Vireya rhods, deciduous azaleas and evergreen azaleas. The latter two are our primary concern here. While most azaleas like protection from winter winds and the afternoon summer sun, several thrive out in the open, in full sun and a western exposure. Not the dainty bush you thought you knew.

For areas with full sun you can plant the deciduous native azalea — rhododendron calendulaceum — also known as the flame azalea because of the orange blossoms. There is a yellow variant but it is a little more difficult to find. Several Exbury azalea hybrids thrive in full-sun as well, including "Gibraltar" and "Klondyke." Both are deciduous, reaching about 5 feet in spread and height. "Gibraltar" has crimson-orange buds that open to orange flowers and "Klondyke" has red buds that open to orange-gold blossoms.

Evergreen azaleas are often used as foundation plants around homes. When evergreen types are planted in full sun they maintain better fall and winter foliage color, therefore they are desirable for front landscapes. Some evergreen azaleas that tolerate or prefer full sun include the pink flowering "Coral Bells" which reach about 5 feet in spread and height; and the semi-dwarf, pink-tinge, yellow flowering "Mary Fleming" that only reaches about 30 inches in height. If you have an eastern exposure most azaleas will perform very well in your front landscapes, just watch the soil pH because concrete foundations leech lime which will lower the acidity of the soil.

Azaleas are acid-loving plants that prefer a soil pH between 5 and 6. Rich, well-drained soil is ideal, of course, with adequate moisture. Azaleas are shallow rooted so avoid cultivating around the plant and keep the soil moist. A 1 to 2 inch layer of pine straw mulch will help keep weeds down and moderate the soil moisture and temperature. As the pine straw decomposes it will add to the acidity of the soil to a small degree.

The attractive, natural shape of azaleas means that very little pruning is needed. If you need to prune to contain the size or to thin the shrub, do so right after the shrub finishes blooming in late spring. Next year's blooms will develop throughout the summer. Dead-heading is another good practice to help maintain azaleas. Remove spent blossoms so that the plant's energy is not expended producing seeds. You can also pinch out the tips of new growth to encourage bushier growth. Feed your azaleas right after they finish blooming with a fertilizer formula-

Flaget Baby Fair will educate, entertain and enrich Almost 26 years ago, when I had my baby, I realized very quickly that the little squirt had arrived without the instruction manual. My entire family of origin was living in New Jersey, while I was making my home in rural Kentucky with my husband. I really missed out on the extended family support that's so helpful when you're raising a newborn.

Nowadays, with extended families evolving into nuclear families, and with two-parent families evolving into one-parent families, help for expectant parents and new parents gets more

AMY TAYLOR
» FLAGET HEALTH
amytaylor@flaget.com and more rare. That's why Flaget Birth Center staff members organize a Flaget Baby Fair every year. They know the truth of this maxim: "It takes a village to raise a child."

This year's Flaget Baby Fair will be 11 a.m.-2 p.m. Saturday, April 28, at the Flaget Memorial Hospital campus. The event is free and will feature vital information for expectant and new parents, a bouncy gym, face painting, games, a wealth of giveaways and door prizes, and activities for the older children. There will also be free refreshments and booths. If you're expecting a baby, don't miss this fair.

There will be educational breakout sessions for topics that are vital for parents and their infants. For example, you'll have the opportunity to learn about the benefits of breastfeeding.

Why breastfeed when you can drive to the grocery store and stock up on canned formula? For one thing, breast milk is the healthiest food that you can feed a newborn. Breastfed babies tend to have fewer illnesses; they also develop better, have better dental health later on, and have less incidence of obesity.

In addition, breastfeeding helps to strengthen the loving bond between mother and child. There is no experience in the world that's quite like breastfeeding a baby. Other benefits for moms include saving money (formula can cost $2,000 or more per year), losing pregnancy weight faster, and decreasing the risk of developing breast or ovarian cancer. If you are going to breastfeed, learn from more experienced moms to help you get over a few humps and nourish yourself properly.

Breastfeeding is just the beginning of what you can learn at the Flaget Baby Fair. If you're just getting your start, find out how vital good prenatal care is to having a healthy baby and a healthy mom. Find out how important it is to eat well, exercise regularly, and avoid alcohol, tobacco, illicit drugs, x-rays, hot tubs and saunas.

So it actually takes more than a village to raise a child; it takes good information—shared freely and followed closely. Babies may not come with instruction manuals, but we have each other to lean on for support and education. Come to the Flaget Baby Fair to find out what other parents have learned.

To register for the event or to sign up for free booth space, call 350-5035.

Make meal time family time and share fond memories

JESSICA SPALDING BICKETT
Lincoln Trail District Health Department

One of the fondest memories of my childhood is that of my entire family sitting down almost every evening for a nice meal together. It was a great opportunity for us to talk about the day's events and stay connected with each other. For most families these days it is hard to make time for family meals for many reasons. But the benefits of sharing a meal together are tremendous for parents and kids.

Many studies have been done to show the benefits of family mealtime. Families who frequently share meals together are healthier families. Studies show that kids tend to eat more fruits, vegetables and dairy products at meals shared with parents. They also learn how to choose more nutritious foods.

Social skills are also improved at family mealtime. Kids learn language development, table manners and conversational skills. It has also been shown that regular family mealtime leads to greater academic achievement, improved reading skills and test scores.

Family mealtime does not have to be complicated or expensive. With today's busy schedules, it isn't always possible to have everyone present for a family meal. One adult and one child can have a family mealtime. In addition, family mealtime does not always have to be at the kitchen table. Have a picnic at the soccer field or a "tailgater" in the car.

Let each family member plan a day's menu. This will satisfy everyone's taste buds and allow for creativity. Remember to make a list of quick family favorites for those extra hectic times. Children learn basic cooking skills and to appreciate a variety of foods when they are involved in meal preparation. Rotate mealtime responsibilities, such as setting the table and cleanup. Try to have a meal with your family at least several days during the week. The benefits will outweigh the efforts and these positive childhood memories will be cherished for life!

Tips to find out if you are a distracted driver

RACHEL BRINEY
Community Health Educator
Nelson County Health Department

Driving is an everyday event for most people. Whether we are going to work or school, the grocery store, or just to visit a friend, we usually get in our vehicles without giving a second thought to the possibility that our actions may cause us to become distracted drivers.

Distracted driving occurs any time you take your eyes off the road, your hands off the wheel, or your mind off the task of driving safely.

The following are just a few types of driving distractions:

- Texting
- Using a cell phone or smartphone
- Eating and drinking
- Talking with passengers
- Grooming (putting on makeup, fixing hair, etc.)
- Reading, including maps
- Using a navigation system
- Watching a video
- Adjusting a radio, CD player, or MP3 player

With today's busy schedules and many responsibilities we can feel pressured to multi-task, even while driving. But this can have devastating consequences.

According to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA), "In 2009, 5,474 people were killed in crashes involving driver distraction, and an estimated 448,000 were injured. Among those killed or injured in these crashes, nearly 1,000 deaths and 24,000 injuries included cell phone use as the major distraction."

The following facts from the NHTSA demonstrate just how dangerous using a cell phone or texting while driving can be:

- Talking on a cell phone—even if it's hands-free—saps the brain of 39 percent of the energy it would ordinarily devote to safe driving
- Using a cell phone while driving delays your reaction time as much as having a blood alcohol concentration of .08, the legal limit for drunk driving.
- Drivers who use a handheld device are 4 times more likely to get into a crash serious enough to cause injury
- Texting drivers are 23

times more likely to get involved in a crash

- Younger, inexperienced drivers under age 20 may be at highest risk because they have the highest proportion of distraction-related fatal crashes.

In 2010, Kentucky law banned texting by all drivers while a vehicle is in motion. The law also banned the use of all personal communications devices by drivers under age 18. There are, unfortunately, still many distractions that we must find ways to avoid while we are driving, to ensure that we arrive at our destination safely.

Here are some tips from the Governors Highway Safety Association:

- Turn your phone off or switch to silent mode before you get in the car
- Set up a special message to tell callers that you are driving and you'll get back to them as soon as possible
- If you need to make a call, pull over to a safe area first
- Ask a passenger to make the call for you
- Review maps and directions before you start to drive
- Secure pets properly before you start to drive
- Pull over to a safe location to address situations with your children in the car
- Focus on the task at hand—Refrain from smoking, eating, drinking, reading and any other activity that takes your mind and eyes off the road

Driving a vehicle is a responsibility that should be taken seriously. Each time we open the car door we need to make sure that we do everything possible to eliminate known distractions and keep our mind on "the task at hand."

>> AROUND KENTUCKY

Here's a sampling of events you might want to check out

Through Aug. 26: A new exhibit, "About Face: Kentucky Artisan Works Inspired by the Human Face," opened March 3 at the Kentucky Artisan Center at Berea, and will be on display through Aug. 26, 2012.

This exhibit features a wide range of works in which the human face is a central element, focal point or inspiration. Created by 43 Kentucky artisans working in photography, painting, fiber, clay, gourds, wood, bronze, collage and mixed-media, this exhibit showcases realistic and abstract works.

The center's exhibits, shopping and travel information areas are open winter hours daily 9 a.m.-6 p.m., with the cafe open 9:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m. Admission is free. The center features works by more than 650 artisans from 100 counties throughout the state. For more information call (859)985-5448 or visit the center's website at www.kentuckyartisan-center.ky.gov.

April 7: Donna and Donnie Smith, of Waco, will demonstrate their carved and painted gourds 10:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m. at the Kentucky Artisan Center at Berea. Most of the Smiths' gourds are raised on their 5-acre farm. A good dried gourd, though, is just the beginning. Each gourd must be washed to remove the outer skin which has molded and left an interesting pattern and texture on the gourd surface. Once the gourd is clean, it is sanded before its lid is cut. Donnie is constantly finding creative ways to cut gourds, transforming them into baskets and lidded vessels using cut-out filigreed designs that enhance and integrate the painted surface and form. Their newest designs have wooden inset bases that allow greater stability for the more vertical and asymmetrical gourds. Gourds by Donna and Donnie Smith are regularly available at the Kentucky Artisan Center at Berea, 200 Artisan Way, just off Interstate 75 at Berea exit 77. The center's exhibits, shopping and travel information areas are open daily from 9 a.m.-6 p.m. and the cafe is open 9:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m. Admission is free. The center currently features works by more than 650 artisans from 100 counties throughout the Commonwealth. A special exhibition, "About Face: Kentucky Artisan Works Inspired by the Human Face," is on display through Aug. 26, and a lobby exhibit "Thinking Big: Oversized Works by Kentucky Artisans," is on display through April 28. For information call 859-985-5448, or visit the center's website at www.kentuckyartisan-center.ky.gov.

April 12: North America's Only Dhol 'N Brass Band, Red Baraat 8 p.m. in the Bomhard Theater at Kentucky Center. Led by dholi Sunny Jain, Red Baraat is the first and only dhol 'n brass band in North America, melding infectious North Indian Bhangra rhythms with funky New Orleans' style brass.

A favorite at Jazz, World and Roots music festivals, this NYC-based group plays fresh originals and Bollywood favorites with an explosive stage performance and presence that brings audiences to their feet.

National Geographic says "Red Baraat has been one of the New York music scene's best-kept secrets." The Wall Street Journal says they are "a Big Band for the World."

2012 session. Applicants who are selected and complete the three-week residential program will find themselves to be more self-sufficient, more confident, and will be an inspiration for their families and community. The New Opportunity School staff and alumni also provide a strong support system for graduates.

The New Opportunity School's unique program has received national recognition on Oprah and in People magazine. The 2012 NOSW Summer Residential Session is June 3-23. The deadline for application is April 15, 2012.

April 26: Purchase tickets today for the annual Empty Bowls fundraiser which is held to bring awareness of hunger in the Owensboro community. Empty Bowls 2012 will take place at a new location this year: Third Baptist Church, 527 Allen Street, starting at 6 p.m. This local event is part of a national one to raise funds for those in need of food. Brescia University's Art Department supplies the clay, glaze, and location for local potters who donate their time to make ceramic bowls. The bowls are then used as soup bowls at the fundraiser. The cost per person is $15 which includes dinner and the unique, handmade bowl. Soups this year include Tomato Basil, Black Bean, Chicken Noodle, Lentil, and Tuscan Vegetable.

New this year will be a silent auction. Local artists are creating one-of-a-kind pieces that will be available exclusively that evening.

All proceeds from Empty Bowls will fund one or more local soup kitchens or food pantries, who will be announced during the dinner. Last year $3,260 was given to St. Benedict Joseph Homeless Shelter.

Only 300 tickets are available and may be purchased in advance by cash or check Monday through Friday from 8-noon and 1-4 pm at the Information Desk at Brescia University's Campus Center (717 Frederica Street, Owensboro). You may also purchase tickets at the door.

Followay named District Master Conservationist

The Nelson County Conservation District named Joe Followay as its 2011 Master Conservationist. This award honors farm owners who have applied and maintained 90 percent of all government and voluntary conservation practices on their farm.

Followay and his wife, Brenda, have three children and eight grandchildren. Followay retired from Fugl-Seal last year, after 41 years of employment.

The couple own land in Nelson and Marion Counties. They own a total of 20 acres. Followay currently maintains a 50 head beef cow and calf operation. His farm is in all pasture and hayland.

In 2005, Followay entered into a Government Land Treatment Contract, under the Environmental Quality Incentives Program, in which land practices are installed to resolve environlated for acid-loving plants.

If you choose the right azalea for your environment and provide proper care it should be long-lived. Typically, azaleas are reliable bloomers but if you see signs of decline check on a couple of things in order to make an accurate diagnosis. Understand that the pH of the soil needs to be between 5 and 6 for optimum health; yellowing of foliage and scant blooms is an indication otherwise. Powdery mildew is common on azaleas grown in heavy shade. Keep an eye out during periods of rain and treat with a botanical fungicide such as Neem before the mildew spreads.

Azalea lace bugs can also stress the plants out. These small pests feed on the underside of the leaves leaving a speckled effect behind; leaf-miners leave little trailings on the foliage; and spider mites cause the yellowing of leaves as they suck the plant juices. These insect pests reduce the vigor of the plant and mar the appearance of the foliage. Neem oil will also work on these pests as will any light summer horticultural oil.

Thomas Nelson High band

ABOVE — Shawn Robinson, the recently named band director for Thomas Nelson High School, accepts a TNHS “foundational brick” from Nelson County High School Band leader Marc Monroe, during a reception, Wednesday, in the band room at the new high school. Robinson is currently Director of Bands for Mesilla Valley Christian Schools in Las Cruces, New Mexico. During an introductory visit here last week, Robinson visited Boston, New Haven and the two high schools. His official start date at TNHS is June 1, although he has already started selecting and ordering instruments for the program, said TNHS Principal Wes Bradley. “For us the brick is a symbol of laying the foundation for the future of Thomas Nelson High School. We tell future Generals, “Each brick is unique, yet essential to maintaining a strong foundation for the program. It takes courage to hold onto the brick and build the foundation,” Bradley explained. ABOVE LEFT — Spencer Goff, a band member and incoming junior at Thomas Nelson High School, wears – and displays – the new band uniform for the first time during a reception last week at the new high school.

NCHS concert band receives distinguished rating

The Nelson County High School Concert Band received all distinguished ratings at the KMEA Heartland Concert Band Festival in Elizabethtown on March 29. This is the fourth year in a row the band has received a distinguished rating and qualified for the KMEA State Concert Band Festival at the University of Louisville in May. Last year the band received all distinguished ratings on the state level.

Students help local company make a Mad Dash to help Henryville tornado victims

Students from Bluegrass Christian Academy, along with adults from Parkway Baptist Church, helped to load items destined to supply relief for the tornado victims in Henryville, Ind., following the early March tornadoes that ripped through Kentuckiana.

Katie and Jim Amburgey, owners and operators of Mad Dash, Inc., a local delivery service, organized the welfare relief destined to the Monroe Township Fire Department in storm-torn Henryville.

Items, donated by students at the small Christian academy, along with ministry donations from Parkway were loaded up to go for disaster relief.

Senior's refusal to 'sext' results in loss of friend

DEAR ABBY: Two years ago, when I was in 10th grade, I had a best friend, "Ben." We talked all the time, shared secrets and always hung out together. I never regarded him as someone I'd like to date, so I never took his attention very seriously.

That summer, he texted me and asked me to send him a picture of my breasts. When I said no, he became pushy. I told him I didn't know what he was going to do with the picture, and I didn't want to get in trouble. He was upset that I didn't "trust" him. I tried to explain that I couldn't assume he wouldn't do anything to hurt me. We didn't talk the rest of the summer.

The following year we had a chemistry class together, and Ben acted like he didn't know me. He deleted my phone number and dropped me as a friend on Facebook. Now, in our final year of high school, he's in another class with me. He still won't acknowledge me and is always flirting with my best friend.

I have cried so much over Ben. I miss him a lot. I don't understand why he's treating me this way. What did I do that was so awful? Is something wrong with me?

JEANNE PHILLIPS

DEAR ABBY
Syndicated Columnist

DEAR BEWILDERED: You did nothing wrong. You considered Ben to be a friend, and I assume that you aren't in the habit of showing your male friends your breasts. It seems only logical that you wouldn't send a picture that could wind up where it knows where.

Ben is acting this way because he is trying to punish you for not giving him what he wanted. He's flirting with your friend to hurt you and/or make you jealous. These are not the actions of a friend, and the sooner you accept it, the better off you will be. Ben strikes me as immature and a user, so be glad you didn't do what he wanted. It was good common sense.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding money and adult children, should a parent help all children equally if they are financially able to? Or should a parent offer help only to the children in need (medical expenses, kid in college, new washing machine, etc.)? If one child has a high-paying job, does he/she deserve any less from a parent in the end?

WONDERING
DEAR WONDERING: Before deciding how to divide your assets, first discuss this with an attorney who specializes in wills, trusts and estate planning. From my perspective, if you leave an equal amount to each of your heirs, it will prevent hurt feelings and resentment among them after you are gone. Monies given before your death to one of your children should be tallied and deducted from the amount he or she is allotted in your will — with an explanation of the reason why it is less.

DEAR ABBY: I am torn between two important people in my life. My best friend and my husband graduate this year on the same day, one at 9 a.m., the other at 10 a.m., at two different colleges an hour and a half apart.

My friend says that because I was able to attend my husband's associate and bachelor degree graduations, I should attend her ceremony because I have never seen her graduate. However, I feel my husband's having earned his master's degree is a huge accomplishment, and that I should attend his graduation. What do you think, Abby?

UNDECIDED
IN ARKANSAS
DEAR UNDECIDED: I think you should follow your instincts, because they are exactly right. During your lifetime you will have many friends, but let's hope only one husband.
